

A day of reflection for Elk Point and district

Snowflakes fluttered down on the bowed heads of four Canadian Forces Wainwright personnel standing guard at Elk Point's cenotaph on Monday, as wreaths were reverently laid, and a large crowd paused in silence to remember the men and women who served their country in two world wars and other conflicts past and present.

Master of Ceremonies Sid Holthe, Legion Branch Chaplain Jim MacLellan and Rev. Norm Hartley led the group through a brief ceremony of prayer and tribute, before wreaths were laid by dignitaries and representatives of organizations and businesses.

The group then moved into the Seniors' Recreation Centre, where a group of students from J. F. Dion School recited "In Flanders Fields," and 1995 Poppy Contest winner Leanne Wilson read her essay, "Memories of War."

Legion President Louis Verhagen read greetings from Prime Minister Jean Chretien, who called Remembrance Day "a day of reflection," and said "Canadians have never shirked their duty."

Verhagen said that during war, "there were no hyphenated Canadians. All of them were buddies." He is pleased that Metis and First Nations servicemen are finally being recognized for their contribution, "even if it is fifty years too late."

Verhagen thanked the Elk Point Scouts for their assistance in looking after the poppies, and the visitors from CFB Wainwright for their participation.

Captain Merle J. Mylrea of CFB Wainwright reminded those present that "unfortunately, wars are not a thing of the past." She told of one of the biggest battles in the past 40 years, which was fought in September 1993, and which earned a citation for the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. The harrowing tale of soldiers pinned down by gunfire, and blasting back with assault rifles and machine guns was made very vivid by the Captain's words.

Sgt. Peter Sherstan remembered the contributions of the RCMP, who have been involved with the military in five conflicts over the years, and who have members currently assisting in peacekeeping missions. "We must never forget their contribution."

December 6 Extravaganza sets stage for Christmas

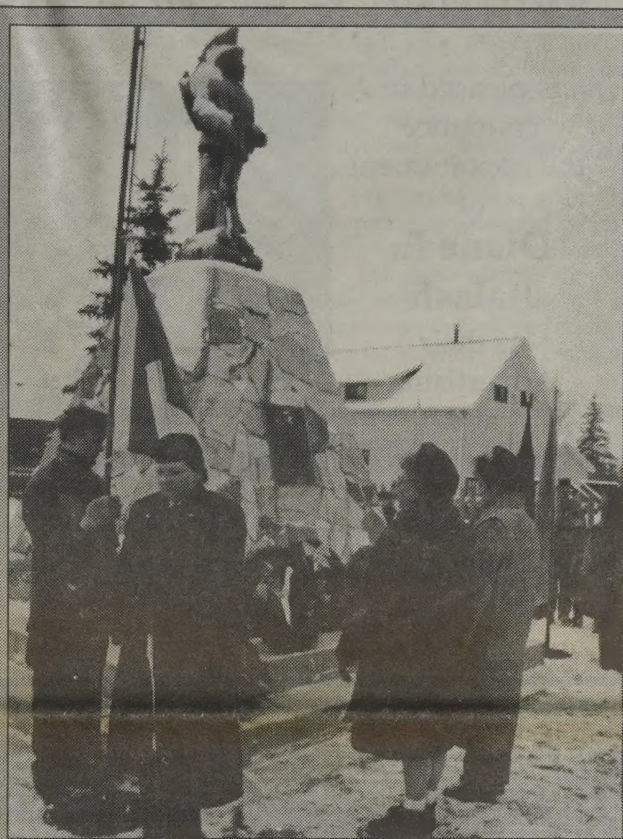

Plans for the December 6 Christmas Extravaganza are moving into high gear, following the first organizational meeting of the season last week.

Businesses will be staying open until 11:00 p.m. that evening, and a program including sleigh rides, a Main Street bonfire, downtown skating rink and a visit from Santa is being put together.

Sponsors are being sought for the annual draw for $300, $200 and $100 in Elk Point Bucks, which shoppers will enter when they make a purchase that evening. A coloring contest for the youngsters, with prizes for three age groups, is also in the works.

A new attraction this year will be a silent auction of trees or wreaths bought by businesses and adopted and decorated by clubs and organizations, who will receive the proceeds of the auction for the tree they decorate. Gail Kozicky is coordinating the tree program and can be contacted for further details.

The next meeting for the Extravaganza Committee is slated for 8:00 a.m. on Thursday, November 14.

ELK POINT AND DISTRICT REMEMBERS — Royal Canadian Legion members Genevieve Russell and Peggy Fidler-Zaraska pause for a moment's reflection after placing the Legion's wreath at the cenotaph.

Oilfield waste processing facility plans unveiled

Plans for a $5 million facility which will process oilfield waste to reclaim usable products were unveiled last week at an open house hosted by Newalta Corporation at Landonville Hall.

Construction of the facility, to be located 4.8 km east of Highway 41 along Secondary Highway 640, is slated for spring 1997 construction, with startup in the fall.

The facility will process oilfield-generated wastes such as produced sand, slop oils and oil spill material. These materials were previously trucked to Newalta's plant at Hughenden for processing.

The plant will recover any residual oil that can be reclaimed, as well as washing the oily sand to produce sand which is usable in the construction industry and clay which can be used as fill material. The byproducts of these processes, water and silt, will be treated prior to disposal. The treated water will be sent to a deep disposal well on site and the silt to Newalta's disposal cavern at Hughenden. The disposal well will be completed to provide optimum protection to fresh water aquifers and other hydrocarbon-bearing formations.

No hazardous industrial waste or commercial garbage will be handled at the site.

Newalta staff members were on hand at the open house to outline how the facility will work, and to display an artist's concept of how it will look. All liquid wastes will be contained in sealed tanks and vessels, and there will be no oily water ponds or pits of liquids. Dry solids for processing will be kept in concrete containment areas.

Business of the Year named by Chamber

Elk Point Liquor and Cold Beer Store has been chosen as Elk Point's Business of the Year from nominations received by the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce.

Nominations were also received for Hillside Service and Quality Time Bus Lines, with the glowing commendations for each of the three businesses resulting in a three way tie for the award. The winner was determined by a draw selection from three sealed envelopes.

Liquor store co-owner Bev LaFrance was on hand to be congratulated on the win. The trophy has not yet arrived and will be presented later.

The Chamber also welcomed two new members, Roland Joly and Vern Goad of Signatures Collision and Frame, which celebrated its grand opening Friday.

Dave Yake reported on the Heart of the Lakeland Tourism meeting, which had been rescheduled to Tuesday, November 5 from October 30. He said it will be necessary for local businesses to join Heart of the Lakeland if he is to remain as Elk Point's representative. Membership in the new group has tumbled drastically from 1995 figures throughout the area covered by the organization. "We need membership or it won't fly," Yake said, noting that there is no more provincial funding for the tourism groups and even a "bare bones budget" projects a deficit for next year. Memberships in the Heart of the Lakeland start at $40 for a business with up to six workers.

Anne Himschoot commended the Elk Point businesses which took part in the St. Paul / Smoky Lake Business Development Corporation's Entrepreneur Showcase, and said a "lot of effort went into the wonderful displays."

Oilfield waste processing facility plans outlined at open house

A covered area on the site will be used to hold clean, dry sand prior to delivery to the end user. This sand can be used in the making of cement and cement blocks, in building construction or on golf courses, according to Ken Quaife, Newalta's southern region sales manager.

Quaife explained that the plant will process waste which is "getting to be so much it looks like ski hills."

A number of concerns with the facility were expressed by area residents, including how much noise, odor and traffic would be produced. With all processes taking place indoors and sealed tanks and the absence of outdoor lagoons, the first two are not expected to be a problem. Nor is the plant likely to impact local wildlife or watercourses.

Although Newalta spokesmen say there will be an increase of only one truck per hour, County of St. Paul reeve Ray Danyluk and Division 1 councillor Allan Young are concerned about traffic. Danyluk says he feels the facility will cause added traffic on the County's oiled and gravelled roads, while not producing any tax revenue, since it is located in the County of Two Hills. Both he and Young would prefer to see it located closer to Elk Point, due to the tremendous amount of oil activity north of the Lindbergh area.

If this is indeed a problem, it won't be for long. Quaife says that another facility of the same type is slated for the Fort Kent - LaCorey area in the near future.

Family violence prevention

By Deanna Easthope

FCSS Director

November 11th is now passed; but I hope we won't forget the cost of war. Its ramifications are far reaching, yesterday, today and tomorrow.

In the dictionary, I learned that the definition of war is "a state or period of open and declared armed fighting between states or nations... the act of a hostility, conflict or antagonism... a struggle between opposing forces or for a particular end."

If we could put it simply, family violence is like a state of war within the family. Just like war, family violence has ramifications that are far reaching, yesterday, today and tomorrow.

This last summer, when I had the opportunity to travel to Germany, Austria, Switzerland and France with the Elk Point Community Choir, we were able to visit some cities which had seen war. What made an impression on me was that the people had a great desire to rebuild their cities to the point where they looked exactly like the way they were before the war. It is almost like they were saying, "our past is very valuable for it speaks of who we really are!"

This rebuilding obligation was also evident when we had a chance to talk to some people. For example, the family that Blaine and I stayed with, shared with us what was included in the deductions in their paycheques. Apparently, with the border being eliminated between East and West Germany, extra money was needed to help the conditions in East Germany equalize with the conditions in West Germany. Therefore, extra deductions were coming off paycheques, and more government spending was taking place in what was East Germany. Our hosts, who explained this to us, displayed no negative feelings about this as it was something that they felt was their obligation to do for their fellow Germans. "It is something we do because it is who we are!"

To me, this obligation to rebuild sends out a powerful message. One part of the message tells me that they have emotional roots and they identify with their own history.

Families have emotional roots — some may be stronger and deeper than others, but families have emotional roots. The other segment to this one part of the powerful message of rebuilding, is the identity of our own history. Do we feel loved and that we are an important part of our own family — the one we grew up in — as well as the one we are involved in today and tomorrow?

As Victor Hugo said: "The supreme happiness of life is the conviction that we are loved."

Let us all nourish this feeling with each member of our family so that we can strengthen our identity and emotional roots.

Remembrance Day

The memories of war

By Leanne Wilson

Legion Poppy Contest winner

The parade was marching to the cenotaph. The people were starting to come out of the warm building into the bitter cold. By the time everybody got to the monument, they were freezing and jumping up and down to get warm.

One veteran in particular, Ted Smith, didn't even mind the cold. All the horrible memories of war came flooding into his mind. He had lost a brother and a good friend in the war.

His mind wandered back to the ceremony. They were singing "O Canada," but he couldn't sing, for there was a lump in his throat.

He had tried to save his younger brother, Henry, who had lied about his age to get into the war. Henry was the brave one, always loyal and loving. He got shot in the chest on a dark and cloudy day. The look in Henry's eyes had been one of surprise, pain and sorrow. Ted would always see those eyes whenever he closed his own. He would never forget them.

The familiar bugle call of "The Last Post" penetrated through his thoughts. But he couldn't help going back to his memories. He had tried to drag Henry to camp through whizzing bullets, the cries of men in pain, and the rattle of guns. He was sickened by the sight of the bloodshed that was going on for such a silly reason. Soon he could not pull Henry any longer, for he was weak and sick. He collapsed and wept bitterly, feeling he had failed his brother.

The bugle call echoed through the valley to call them back to their trenches. He didn't want to leave Henry alone, but Henry was dead. "Goodbye, my dear brother," he had whispered.

He started back to his lines. He limped painfully over the dead soldiers. The cold dead look on his faces had scarred him deeply forever. He even recognized some of the soldiers. And there lay his close friend...

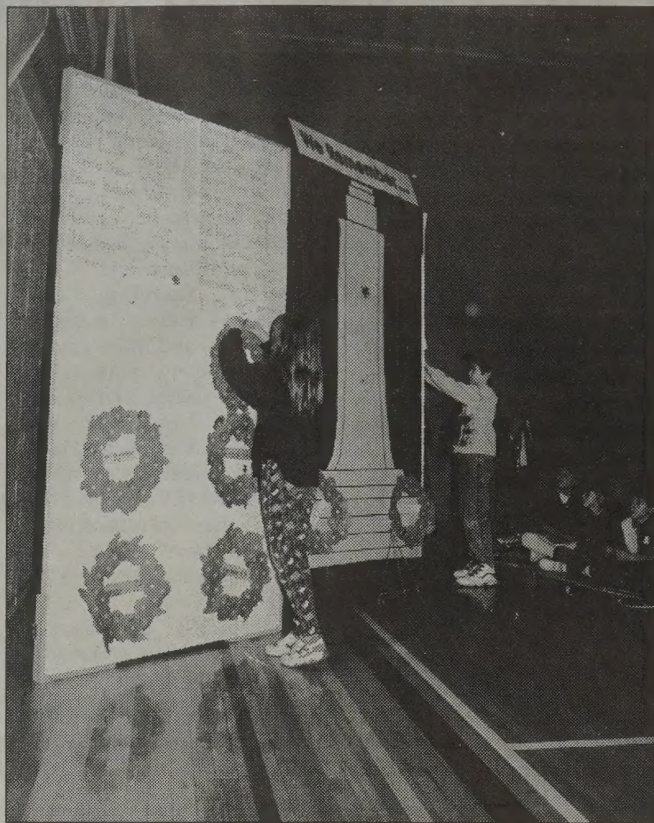

"Ted, go lay the wreath!" somebody whispered in his ear. As Ted laid the wreath, he remembered all the destruction of land, body and soul wrought by war.

"Now, let us have a minute of silence," said the preacher.

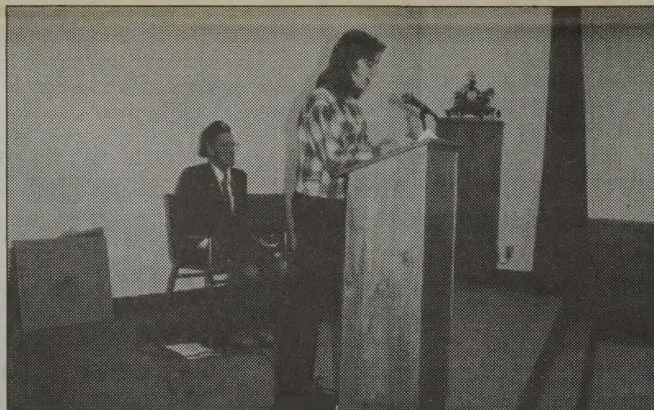

During the minute of silence Ted said a little prayer quietly.

"Please God, don't let our future generations go through the same thing as we did."

Then the "Reveille" sounded as Ted turned away homeward.

A WREATH TO REMEMBER THEM BY -- Poppy laden wreaths created by the classes of Elk Point Elementary School were placed on a cenotaph listing the names of those who served Canada in the World Wars and other conflicts, during the school's Remembrance Day program on November 7.

POPPY CONTEST WINNER LEANNE WILSON, now a Grade 7 student at F. G. Miller High School, read her prize-winning essay, "The Memories of War" at Elk Point's Remembrance Day ceremonies. At left is Elk Point Royal Canadian Legion president Louis Verhagen, who MC'd the indoor program.

IN FLANDERS FIELDS -- The famous John McCrae poem honoring those who died at war was recited by this group of students from J. F. Dion School, Fishing Lake, at Monday's Remembrance Day observances in Elk Point Seniors' Recreation Centre.

Elementary students honor war veterans

They are far too young to harbor memories of war, but the students of Elk Point Elementary School will not forget the contribution made by the men and women who have fought and died for our country in two world wars and the conflicts and peace-keeping missions that followed.

The school's Remembrance Day ceremonies began with a welcome by Don Buryn, who then joined Sandy Myshak in a slide show punctuated with readings, which included the famous "In Flanders Fields."

The students all joined in the singing of "Where Have All The Flowers Gone?" accompanied by Buryn on guitar.

Ms Myshak explained the significance of a cenotaph, which serves as a reminder of those who never returned from battle. A replica of a cenotaph, with names of those servicemen and women who died in the wars and since the wars, and those who served who are still with us, was then adorned with poppy-covered wreaths made by each class, as well as wreaths placed by Royal Canadian Legion representative Jean Russell and School Council representative Helene Brodbin.

Sandra Ockerman told the students that "sounds tell us things," such as when to go to recess and when to wake up in the morning. She explained that in wartime, a bugle call was used as a signal for the time to go to bed and to wake up in the morning. The Last Post and Reveille, played in this case by Randall Krys, before and after a minute of silence, signify the final "going to sleep" and the victory of life over death.

The morning ended with the singing of "Poppies Red" and thanks by Tracy Long to Legion members Jean Russell, Donna McPherson and Louis Verhagen for their attendance at the ceremonies.

New business celebrates grand opening

An excellent crowd was on hand Friday for the official opening of Elk Point's newest business, Signatures Collision and Frame.

Vern Goad, who operates the business with partner Roland Joly, introduced painter Chris Arychuk, journeyman auto body technician Leonard 'Pete' Chomlak, apprentice Justin Malachowski, work experience student Shawn Cameron, Bonnie Smyl and Brenda Goad.

He also introduced Irene Miller, whose car was the first to be processed in the facility's state-of-the-art down-draft paint booth.

Among those on hand for the opening were paint representative Bill Nichols of PPG and Steve McKenzie of Western GM. The Town of Elk Point was represented by Mayor Ed Buck, councillor Mae Hendrickson and Town Manager Curt Svendsen.

Goad thanked the surrounding businesses for their much appreciated assistance during the building process, and the many contractors and subtrades who worked on the handsome new structure.

Mayor Buck congratulated the young entrepreneurs, and SIGNATURES COLLISION OFFICIALLY OPENED -- Mayor Ed Buck had the assistance of a pair of future entrepreneurs as he cut the ribbon officially opening Signatures Collision and Frame in the Elk Point Industrial Park. Also taking part in the ceremony were Signatures owners Vern Goad and Roland Joly, their wives, Brenda Goad and Bonnie Smyl, and children.

said "it's nice to see young people get involved in business."

The afternoon started off with 4-H beef on a bun and ended with numerous door prize draws. Tickets to the Mayfield Inn dinner theatre, from Signatures Collision and Frame, went to Peter Matyaschuk. Radio LW coffee mugs went to Kim Joly, Connor Rutherford, Ed Arychuk and Ron Lesyk. Golf shirts from 3M Automotive Products were won by Morris Cooper and Ernie Clack, t-shirts from Western Paint Products by Melina Piquette, Dwayne Ternovoy, Henri Bonneau, John Vandenburg, Curt Svendsen, a jacket from PPG Paint Products to Denise Joly, and a jacket from Norton Western Paint Products to Alcide Jean.

NEW DOCTOR WELCOMED

Dr. Sandy Koe and her husband John Kulag were warmly welcomed by public health nurse Lois Sheplawy (right) and many other individuals from Elk Point and surrounding districts at a coffee party at the Elk Point Health Centre last Wednesday. A good number of local residents came out to meet Dr. Koe and her geologist husband, who are in town for a three week trial period to see if this would be a suitable community in which to establish a home and family. Dr. Koe said she and her husband were greeted with baskets of fruit and food, and that they had found the community pleasant and its people very friendly.

November 11 was a day of reflection for Elk Point and district

Larry Quinney of Frog Lake is the son of World War II veteran Lawrence Quinney, and said that his father "didn't have to go, but did, to protect the home fires of his children... and the lands we cherish." He said that many of the World War II veterans who were not recognized by the federal government lost their treaty status and "lost much more than they gained by fighting for Canada." He thanked the World War II veterans "for giving us the opportunity to live in peace."

Lorne Dustow, grandson of a World War I veteran, offered his respect to the veterans, who are "doing a good job of reminding us that in a war, nobody wins." As a teenager, he read a lot about the world wars, and "thought about the glory. With the passing of time, I thought about how valuable life and freedom are."

Mayor Ed Buck said that while World War II was the war to end all wars, "we know that wasn't true, but we can live in a democratic society... because people gave up their lives for us. It's very important to remember that."

County reeve Ray Danyluk added a tribute to those who stayed home during the wars and produced food to provide for those both at home and overseas. He honored "all who enabled us to have our freedom. We must remember the realities of war and must never fight again. Our children need to know what freedom means."

Genevieve Russell and Margaret Modin read messages from MLA Paul Langevin and MP Deborah Grey.

Louis Verhagen proudly displayed a medallion presented to the Legion, honoring those from this area who served in the wars, from the Metis Centennial Committee. He and Ms Russell also displayed a painting by Shirley Kinneberg which is to be presented by the Legion to the Elk Point Health Centre's Palliative Care Unit, and a $750 cheque for the Health Centre's purchase of a camera needed for physiotherapy.

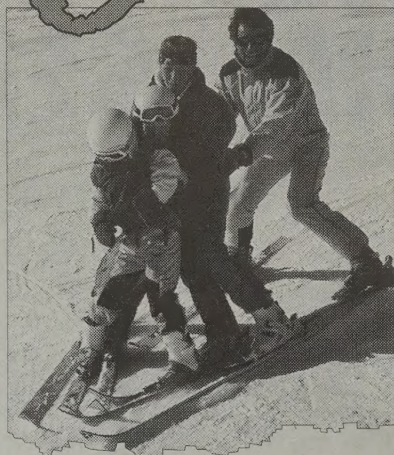

The morning concluded with a brief service by Reverend Sam Donaldson and Reverend Norman Hartley.

Special thanks to Jon Yake who did a drum roll, the Grade 7B students who rolled the drum down the hall and the top seven people in that class, who drew the names.

What's up at F. G. Miller

By Robyn Danyluk

FGM Student Journalist

The school year is well underway at the F. G. Miller High School. Some of the kids are starting to sweat as they fear the arrival of the school year's first report card coming out November 15. Parent teacher interviews will be held November 20 and 21 from 5 to 8 p.m. Good luck, Crusaders!

The Crusade Above the Limit program has had a positive effect. There were 1408 entries submitted during the month of October. Keep up the good work!

Some pretty weird, spooky and unique creatures were found roaming the halls of the high school last Thursday. The students and faculty of F. G. Miller participated in a number of fulfilled Halloween activities put on by the school's Students' Union. There were a lot of costumes; the three top costumes were worn by Gene What's news at the library?

Good books for long winter nights

By Michele Ducek
Librarian

I don't know about you, but the time change really messed things up. Sure, it's light in the mornings when I wake up, but it is already dark when I leave work to go home. I know it will get worse before it gets better but we only have a month and a half more of shrinking daylight before the days get longer again (is this good news or bad news?).

If the long winter nights are leaving you with some time on your hands you might want to check out some recent arrivals in adult non-fiction:

During the summer of 1992, journalist Larry Pynn decided to follow in the footsteps of many Klondike miners by taking the Stikine route, all but forgotten today, but the most heavily used of the Canadian routes during the Klondike Gold Rush. The Forgotten Trail is an account of his journey.

When Barbara Frum died in 1992, the CBC lost one of its most well-known personalities. In Barbara Frum: A Daughter's Memoir, writer Linda Frum presents a compelling portrait of the woman who came to be identified with both a radio program, As It Happens, and a television program, The Journal.

For all those mystery fans out there (and I know who you are) we have just received How to Write a Mystery by Larry Beinhart. This Edgar award-winning novelist gives tips on creating a mystery story that will sell.

Historian J. R. Miller has traced the history of native residential schools in Shingwauk's Vision, a thorough and unflinching account of what many consider to be a catastrophic episode in Canadian history.

Confused about the stock market? Then you might want to check out Through the Money Labyrinth by S. E. Woods, a guide through the ins and outs of the stock market for Canadians.

We have also just received the sixth and latest edition of Real Estate Buying/Selling Guide for Alberta by George C. Stewart from Self-Counsel Press.

Also from Self Counsel Press is the latest edition of Probate Guide for Alberta by Cheryl C. Gottselig.

Tracking & the Art of Seeing by Paul Rezendes is a guide to animal tracks and signs and what they mean.

The Smart Kitchen by David Goldbeck is a guide to designing a comfortable, safe, energy-efficient and environment-friendly kitchen.

Wildflowers Across the Prairies by F. R. Vance, J. R. Jowsy and J. S. McLean is the definitive guide to the flora of the prairies. This is the revised and expanded edition with lots of color photographs.

The People by Donald Ward is a historical guide to the First Nations of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Student wins provincial award

Kyle Svendsen of Elk Point has been named the top Grade 4 student in Alberta's Distance Learning Program. The home-schooled student was presented with a plaque at an awards ceremony in Edmonton on October 31.

The Instructional Services division of Alberta Distance Learning Centre recognized their top students with awards.

Students qualifying for the award had to complete all course requirements by the end of August, 1996, be registered in English, Social Studies and at least two other academic courses, and receive a mark of over 80% in each course.

Selecting the final award recipients was no easy task. In the elementary grades, the top student in each grade had to be selected from a group of almost 140 students.

Congratulations were extended not only to the students who reached the top of their grades, but to the parents who helped their youngsters reach this goal. Thanks were extended to home school coordinators in the various school jurisdictions who supervised the distance learning educational programs.

AWARD WINNER Kyle Svendsen was presented with a plaque for the top Grade 4 marks by his Alberta Distance Learning Centre teacher Kannah Raju.

A weekend of Thunder, Lightning and Storm

By Doug Bassett

Elk Point Minor Hockey

Friday night a big crowd came out to see a very entertaining game when Ben Poulin and the Mallaig Monarchs rolled into town to meet the Thunder. A tight checking first period saw no scoring until 8:42 when Shawn Waskewitch gave the Thunder their first goal, making it 1-0 after one. Lots of action in the second period when Mallaig scored their first goal, then went ahead of the Thunder when they added another on a power play. Thirty seconds later Thunder tied it up when captain Marty Bendixen fooled the goalie with a wrist shot. Then it was bantam-aged player Jordan Bassett who took the lead again when he split the defence and scored a beauty of a goal on a breakaway. Next it was big #9 Loren Kozicky who scored on the wrap around making it 4-2 for the Thunder after 40 minutes. Mallaig added another goal in a rough third period that saw the Thunder play eight straight minutes shorthanded, but still manage to pull off the win with great goaltending from BJ Tucker who faced 44 shots.

Sunday afternoon Thunder were on the road to battle J. P. Kelly and the Kitscoty Pitbulls. The Pitbulls are always tough to beat in their own barn and took a 2-0 lead before Loren Kozicky scored, making it 2-1 for the Pitbulls after two periods. The third period was filled with penalties. Thunder took 22 minutes in penalties in the third period and at one point five Thunder players were in the sin bin. Marty Bendixen scored the only goal in the third on a wicked slapshot. The Pitbulls, who were no angels themselves, would defeat the Thunder 5-2 in this one. Losing the battle, but not the war.

In other hockey news, Kandice Bjornstad scored the first goal in franchise history of the midget girls Storm. And down on the farm, peewee Tylor Desjarlais scored a hat trick for the bantam Lightning Saturday night.

This week the Thunder takes their first bus trip, travelling south on Saturday night to meet Wainwright Bisons, with whom the Thunder tied their last match, then on Sunday, Gillian Cousins' hometown of Edam, SK comes to meet the Thunder at 5 p.m. Come on down to the Thunderdome for some good hockey and cheer on the boys.

What's up at FGM

Cardinal, Frances Cardinal and Aaron Young. It was nice to see everyone dressed up, having fun and in the spirit for a little mystery.

The Grade Elevens presented their Remembrance Day Ceremony to the rest of the school on November 7. Their performance was well done and they deserve credit for the hard work they put into it.

The volleyball season is winding down and basketball is just around the corner. The Senior High boys and girls volleyball teams hosted the St. Paul Saints last Wednesday. The Senior girls came out with one win out of six, and the boys won two. The Grade 7 volleyball teams hosted the Elizabeth Settlement, November 7. The boys were defeated, and the girls came out on top winning two out of the three games.

The Crusaders of the week are Joanne deMoissac (Grade 7) and Bomee Lee (Grade 8). Congratulations!
